

Katalin Kovacs undertook her research work in the field of simulation under the guidance of Professor András Jávor director of the McLeod Institute of Simulation Sciences Hungarian Center and received her PhD with summa cum laude in the field of Information Sciences at the Interdisciplinary Doctoral School of Engineering, Modeling and Development of Infrastructural Systems. She is assistant professor at the Department of Information Technology of the Szechenyi Istvan University, in Hungary. Her research fields are modeling and simulation, her special topic is modeling of the effects of human factors in traffic systems.